What is CP?

Cerebral Palsy is caused by damage to the brain, usually occurring before or during birth. A person with CP cannot fully control motor functions (e.g. walking), and may also have difficulties with speech, balance, sight, hearing or cognition.

Cerebral Palsy is the most widespread of all disabling conditions, affecting approximately one out of every 1,000 live-born babies.

United Cerebral Palsy provides services for children with all types of developmental disabilities as well as providing vital information and support for their families.
